This topic back to the top.

Time to hit the New Member thread to send out some welcomes.

I read the posts by Grayguns - referenced by Ibj. Grayguns is one sharp thinking fellow. That kind of cogency on a gun board is like rain on a dry Texas prairie. Nice. Makes me very happy.

I've noticed that it HAS been nicer the last few days.

Good to see.

I have also noticed this. The tone on the board has become more civil. Were a lot of the miscreants tossed into the fire?

Certainly noted as well, refreshing actually, previously I had to sift through all the name calling, caliber bashing and nonsense. Now it's easier to actually find the answers!

I wonder if the average daily post count is down?

That won't last long. I suspect folks are just being a bit more careful right now. If anything, I'd bet Views are up.

The people on the board have been pretty honest when I ask a reasonable question. I own only one Sig a p239 and it has performed well. I will add Sig customer service leaves a little to be desired. I carry the Sig or a G36 every day I go outside the house.

Just thought it a good time to bring it back to the top.

I'm glad you did. A thread with a great series of posts on the Norinco 226 somehow got degenerated into a stupid pissing match. I would've raised hell about it there, but the thread seemed to get back on course and I didn't want to mess with that. That nonsense is really freakin' irritating, even to someone like me who's been guilty of thread drift before.

reputable ones will resolve them to the customer's satisfaction usually in a timely fashion. I believe Sig is one of those companies.

Just taking a moment to step back from this and toss in an observation of the true core of this Forum.

Look at the raffle response to benefit "Horse", the genuine outpouring of concern for Bruce and there you have who we truly are. Do we have some warts, sure but "Dr" lbj seems to be removing those.
