Canadian debut summer 2006

Written by Tom X. Chao

Reviews

"Playwright Tom X. Chao's little gem is a definite sleeper hit."
--Toronto Sun

"A personal story of heartbreak from playwright Tom X. Chao . . . His brainy banter . . . is entertaining . . . including a hilarious puppet show between geometric shapes which has 'no allegorical content'."
--Eye Weekly (Toronto)

"New York playwright Tom X. Chao certainly deserves a lot of respect just for finding a new take on the "smart, misunderstood, antisocial guy wonders why girls don't like him" premise. . . . It's self-referential in a surprisingly funny way. . . . It's very clever, thought-provoking, at points very funny. . . . If you're like me, and you like your Fringe shows extra-fringey, you'll probably thoroughly enjoy Can't Get Started . . ."
